Danger: Children at Work

Answer the following questions according to the text.

1. At what age do some children start work? (1)
— At the early age of ten.
2. Why do children in some parts of the world start work at an early age? (1)
— They are often forced to, to supplement family income.
3. Give two examples of child labour. (2)
— children of six working 8 to 14 hours a day in sickening conditions
— carpets woven by girls under twelve
— children carrying bricks or clearing rubbish off building sites
4. What do children receive for their work? (2)
— Nothing or very little. And even that very little is given to their families.
5. What are the effects of child labour on children themselves? (2)
— They can't attend school, they are badly treated, they are in bad health. It will be impossible for them to improve their conditions later as they grow older.
